

TTT: Performance and Load Testing

Performance and load testing are close partners, where the latter is a subset of the first.

Performance should be a core concern, adopted and measured from the start. Doing so, will avoid many of the problems found typically during load testing.

Load testing can be performed in internal/development related environments and, if possible, should also be performed in production.

Open-source tools

- Performance and load testing with JMeter
- Load testing using Gatling and JUnit in Scala
- Load testing and functional testing with Taurus

Other tools

- Integration with NeoLoad